DEBORAH BARTLEY-CARTER

Educator, Jersey City School District

Fulbright Distinguished Award in Teaching, 2020

Deborah Bartley-Carter's lifework has been in education for the past 22 years. She advanced in her career from primary and secondary school teacher to district level leadership roles. As a Regional Instructional Specialist in Literacy and School Libraries K-12 in New York City and then District Supervisor of Language Arts K-12 in New Jersey, she worked to find innovative and sustainable ways to impact teaching and learning literacy. As an Assistant Principal in grades 6-12 and Interim Acting Principal K-3, she worked with a team to design curriculum, support professional growth and build community. In 2020, she received the Fulbright Distinguished Award in Teaching and conducted her inquiry research in the Netherlands at Maastricht University.
